3 March at 6pm with Emirati classic, Sea Shadow, the coming-of-age story of two young villagers in Ras Al Khaimah struggling with traditions.

Thierry Michel-directed The Man Who Mends Women will be screened on 6 March at 6.45pm; the true story of Dr Mukwege, a man who has dedicated his life to restoring physical integrity and dignity to women who have been affected by atrocities in the Congo. It will be followed by a Q and A panel discussion with two female humanitarian workers in Africa.

Iranian film Sonita, screened on 7 March at 1pm, tells the story of a feisty, teenage immigrant living in the poor suburbs of Tehran who dreams of confronting her patriarchal family and pursuing her dreams as a singer.

On 8 March – International Women's Day – 2013 Australian documentary I Am A Girl will be shown at 2pm, following six girls aged between 17 and 19 from the United States, Australia, Cambodia, Afghanistan and beyond, and highlighting issues of gender equality, domestic abuse, and mental health. Following it at 5pm, Swedish film Still Loved explores the taboo topic of stillbirth and the love, loss and courage surrounding it. A panel discussion on women's prenatal health, pregnancy and issues surrounding childbirth will close the day's listings.

The remaining films include the Australian Heartbreak and Beauty; an experimental short devised by 12 people living with an intellectual disability, that combines music, visual metaphors, dance and original poetry to express how we're all connected; Indian film In and Above Her Heart, where women share their journeys of overcoming breast cancer; and Kuwaiti flick Freaky, which is a visual portrait of Moroccan painter Mohamed 'Freaky' Benyaich. If you need us, we'll be in the cinema... 📺
